The 5th International Conference of Aquapolises (ICAP) Busan Metropolitan City, South Korea from May 21 to 23, 2008

Busan City will be hosting the 5th International Conference of Aquapolises (ICAP) from May 21 to 23, 2008 at Nurimaru APEC House and BEXCO. Theme will be "For a Sustainable Aquapolis." About 100 participants, including mayors, experts, from around 30 aquapolis cities throughout the world are expected to attend the Conference. ICAP in Busan will offer an opportunity to build a green image and enhance the status of Busan as a global city.

ICAP is an international conference of delegates from world cities, each with their own unique culture and history formed by the harmonious coexistence of water and greenery. ICAP held its first conference in Osaka, Japan in 1990, with participation from 33 cities in 23 countries; the second conference was held in Shanghai, China, with delegates from 28 cities in 22 countries; the third was in Piraeus, Greece, attended by 22 cities in 11 countries, and the fourth in Osaka, Japan again, with participation from 55 cities in 22 countries.

The objective of ICAP is to create (1) cities of harmonious coexistence between nature and humans, (2) comfortable cities rich in water and greenery, and (3) beautiful cities created by redeveloping waterfront and greenery spaces.

Major events, by daily schedule, are as follows:

Day 1 (May 21 at Nurimaru APEC House): Opening Ceremony, Keynote Speech and Welcome Reception

Day 2 (May 22 at BEXCO): Experts' Sessions, Briefing Session on Investment Attractions to Busan City, Adoption of Joint Declaration Statement and Closing Ceremony

Day 3 (May 23): Farewell Ceremony

• An exhibition on water and the environment will be held in conjunction with the conference.

A detailed schedule and information on participation conditions will be forwarded to you separately by Busan City.

Message from the Mayor of Busan

Welcome Address

On behalf of the citizens of Busan, I am pleased to welcome you, honorable citizens, public servants, and experts from aquapolices around the world, to the 2008 ICAP in Busan!

An international convention city that successfully hosted the 2005 APEC Economic Leaders' Meeting, Busan last year was selected as one of the top ten Asian convention cities by the Union of International Associations (UIA).

Busan is blessed by the beautiful harmony of its natural surroundings, its rivers, mountains and sea. To further progress as a logistics hub of Northeast Asia with the world's fifth largest container port, port redevelopment projects are continuing, as is the creation of a new logistics infrastructure, including a distribution park, new port, free economic zone and waterfront areas.

Considerable efforts have been made to improve the management of water resources to come up with measures to more effectively combat the global water crisis. Furthermore, the city government, together with citizens' networks, is working to make Busan a more beautiful city with a clean waterfront, more parks and other green spaces. The city government is taking the initiative in expanding waterfront areas, restoring rivers, and preserving the wetlands and eco-systems of the river estuary.

Busan Metropolitan City Government is fully committed to the goal of making the 2008 International Conference of Aquapolises as successful and as fruitful as possible. We are ready to share with you the knowledge and experience of all our efforts to create an environmentally friendly city, where humans and nature can co-exist in harmony. We cordially invite you, leaders of global aquapolises, to the 2008 ICAP here in Busan.

I look forward to meeting you in Busan in May 2008.

Thank you.
