

At the Shelter

- ◆ Help those with visual disabilities to identify the location of the toilet, water, and other key places. If there are temporary outdoor toilets, make sure that they are easy to reach; for example, if they are placed
- ◆ For people with hearing impairments, write down any necessary information.
- ◆ Make sure that there are rooms and other spaces that
- ◆ For those unable to understand the changes in the environment and who become very upset, use simple words, letters, pictures, photographs, etc. to explain about the shelter in a way that they can easily understand. Talk to them slowly so that they feel less anxious.
- ◆ For non-Japanese people who do not understand Japanese, help to facilitate communication by writing the information in multiple languages.

- ◆ Consider the differences in the needs of men and women and support for diverse sexualities such as LGBT. For example, consider creating women-only spaces such as changing rooms, nursing rooms, and infant rooms should be provided, creating study spaces for children, and women`s products should be distributed by women.
- ◆ There may be differences in basic lifestyles between Japanese and non-Japanese people, so we need to try to understand each other.
